Dear Dr. Brusstar:

I received your email dated 9/27/2011 and was sorely disappointed and crestfallen by the tenor of your letter. Your assertion that I was seeking your assistance as I had wished is simply mistaken. I am sure you recall that you suggested that any preferred engine development plan would have to be your own personal opinion and not attributable to the EPA's position. Although somewhat surprised by this, it certainly would have been in both our interest and EPA's to present an engine development program suggested by the primary inventor particularly to speed development.
